Kehewin celebrates colorful heritage

Sunny skies smiled on the massive crowds visiting Kehewin Reserve this past weekend for the celebration of their 1988 Intercultural Days.

Traditional ceremonies, feasting, handgames, dancing and drummers filled the weekend, with a pancake breakfast, parade, rodeo, chuckwagon and chariot races adding to the excitement.

Special performances of the Eagle Dance and Hoop Dance, and by the Dene Tha' drummers highlighted the program. Many competitions were held, along with inter-tribal dancing, with young and old dressed in the intricately designed and colorful costumes of their heritage as they paced their steps to the ancient chants and the rhythm of the drums.

The festivities stretched on late into Sunday evening, when presentations were made to the winners of the many categories and events.

School bells signal summer

School bells throughout the County of St. Paul will signal an end to the summer vacation tomorrow, as students return to the classrooms.

There will be a number of new faces at F. G. Miller High School, with Jim Hawkins taking over as Principal, and four new teachers. Angie Engelke will instruct Home Economics, Rod Lis, Business Education, and Len Franko and Eloise Gunns, the English department.

Across the street at Elk Point Elementary, Mr. Fraser will be joining the staff, to replace Mrs. Edythe Way, who retired at the end of the 1987-88 school year.

Heinsburg has one brand-new teacher, Eva van Sommeron, in the Home Economics department, and one who taught the last two months of last year, Henry Paulgaard, in the Industrial Arts department.

With new teachers, new additions to the various curriculums, and ongoing renovation work, it should be an adventurous start for the new school year.

Welcome back, everyone!

KEEPING THEIR HERITAGE ALIVE—Participants in Kehewin Intercultural Days Parade celebrated their heritage with a series of beautifully decorated floats, proudly marking past achievements and the present growth of services and businesses in their community, for a large crowd lining the long parade route as it circled through the powwow grounds.

Taxes rolling in -- Today's the deadline!

Elk Point's municipal property taxes were rolling in early this week, with the deadline for penalty-free payment at 4:30 p.m. today. Payments sent by mail MUST have a Canada Post Corporation postmark date no later than August 31, 1988.

All taxes unpaid as of tomorrow, September 1, will be assessed a 12 percent penalty.

Administrator Pat Vincent told Council Monday night that approximately $431,000 of the total $711,000 due had been tallied up to Monday, with further amounts coming in that day and taxes paid by cheques postdated for today not added in. Sizeable lineups at the Town Office indicated that the majority of ratepayers are eager to avoid the penalty.

With the various Boards eager to get back to work after the summer recess, Town Council agreed to advertise for interested individuals to fill several vacancies. Residents willing to serve on the Municipal Recreation and Cultural Board, Municipal Library Board or the Family and Community Support Services Board, are invited to apply for the positions.

The vacant part-time position of Bylaw Enforcement Officer will also be advertised.

With clarification made regarding its use in conjunction only with programs and services offered by the hospital, Council voted to make a $3000 contribution to Elk Point Municipal Hospital Board to help in defraying the purchase cost of a handi-van. Operation of the van for non-hospital-related use is prohibited by the Hospital's insurance coverage. No contribution toward operational costs of the van to transport long-term care patients to an employment rehabilitation program in St. Paul is possible at the present time, however.

The $1680 price tag for moving Elk Point's recreational vehicle dumping station was questioned by Council, with much of the cost stemming from the high rental charges for packing equipment. Council was told that the selection of the new site, along Highway 41, was chosen with a view to long term development, with water and sewer connections also put in ready for a possible future relocation of the tourist information booth.

Bylaw 487/88, providing for a Flood Control and Drainage Project Funding Agreement with Alberta Environment, to recoup expenditures made in the past for this work, was given all three readings Monday evening.

Councillor Alvina Schuhmacher will serve as the Town's representative to the Community Futures Steering Committee organizational meeting to night in Vilna.

HELPING ELK POINT GROW—Armand Houle presents a $5000 cheque from Amoco Canada Ltd. to Charlene Baker of the Elk Point and District Agricultural Society. This is the first of five equal installments, totalling $25,000, that Amoco plans to contribute toward expansion of the Agricultural Society's facilities.

LABOUR DAY MESSAGE

Labour Day recognizes the efforts of working people everywhere. We in Alberta are committed to hard work in an environment of fairness and honesty. We embrace these principles in our efforts to keep Alberta prosperous and competitive in a challenging world-wide market.

Our Province's new Labour Code comes into effect this fall, the result of more than two years of extensive consultations, discussions and review, confirming the work of the Labour Legislation Review Committee.

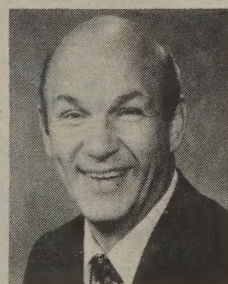

Minimum standards for employment will be enhanced through the new Employment Standards Code, which sets out the minimum provisions that apply to all employees and employers including payment of wages, hours of work, holidays, overtime, vacations, parental benefits and minimum wage.

Free collective bargaining is supported through the new Labour Relations Code, which includes provisions on certification, the negotiating process, mediation, and the role of the Alberta Labour Relations Board.

These laws recognize the enormous advantage of open and honest communications, fairness and equal treatment. They are major steps in providing a balanced labour climate for all Albertans into the 21st Century. Moreover, the laws recognize that employees and employers are best able to manage their own affairs when their rights and responsibilities are clearly established and understood.

In the months ahead, through education and information programs, your Government will ensure that all Albertans are able to learn about their rights and responsibilities under these new laws.

On behalf of your Government,
I wish you all a safe and happy Labour Day holiday.

Ian C. Reid

Back to School in safety

As students throughout the County of St. Paul head back to the books tomorrow, let's all take special care to make sure they get there safely.

For some, it's their first day to make their way to the halls of learning. For others, the excitement of seeing their friends after the long summer vacation makes them a little less careful than they might be. And then there are the high schoolers who are taking their vehicles to school for the first time.

All these are reasons to take special care when approaching the school areas. Crosswalks and speed limits are marked, as are the areas where parking is prohibited. Both motorists and pedestrians are urged to obey these regulations, and to look out for those who may not.

Out on the highways and sideroads, the big yellow school buses are again set to make the rounds. Remember that these vehicles have many stops to make, and that they must not be passed, from either way, when they are stopped and their lights are flashing. Keep a watchful eye, also, for the little ones who must wait at the roadside for the bus to approach. Slow down and keep them safe.

Parents can help to ensure their children arrive at school safely, by teaching them safe use of crosswalks, proper behavior on bicycles, and to stay seated and not to make undue noise on the school bus.

It's a big job to get all these youngsters to school each day without mishap, and the local RCMP, school bus drivers and school patrols do their best—but they need our cooperation.

Have a safe and happy school year, everyone!

GREAT HORNED OWLS PERCH ON MY DECK RAIL — In the early morning of August 19. Unable to see me behind the glass and screen, they were however, very alert to the least sound I made.

Appreciating our wildlife

By Irene Magnusson

I'm not going to start in on a long story about the seals and whales and elephants of this world. Others far more knowledgeable than I are willing to do that. I would like to talk a bit about our near and dear wildlife—those bits of fur and feathers that inhabit our daily lives.

The small birds of our shrubs and shade trees, that greet our mornings in spring with their song, and delight our eyes with their colorful, speedy flights when we are fortunate enough to catch a sight of them—these are our wildlife. Below them, in the long grass, dwell other little creatures, the rabbits (or hares), pocket gophers, ground squirrels, mice, voles, and the odd coyote. These, too, are our wildlife.

In some parts of our area, there are deer, both white tail and mule, and these are ours, too. Even the odd bear that wanders through is part of our heritage. Around our lakes and ponds dwell real-life replicas of our national symbol, the beaver, and near him—muskrats, otter, martens. Lakes and streams carry the fishes, not eels and sharks and whales, but the good little fellows—whitefish, perch, pickerel, pike.

Any of these creatures should merit our respect and thoughts as to their maintenance. When our ancestors first came to this land, all these creatures, and many more, were plentiful and roamed freely over the countryside, which surely was their own.

I don't refer here only to the advent of the white settlers, but to the natives as well, the difference being that there were fewer of them per square mile, and apparently they harvested the wildlife for their 'needs' as opposed to the white man, who added to his needs, 'money', and so his slaughter per capita was much greater.

Even up to the twenties and thirties, there was abundant wildlife around, with never a walk in the woods without seeing partridges, prairie chicken, countless hares and jackrabbits, deer, lynx, coyotes and the odd bear. Our woods were full of birds—meadowlarks, bluebirds, hawks and owls, and countless others. The waters—sloughs, lakes, streams—were richly strewn with ducks and geese, sandpipers and mudhens (coot), slough-pumpers (bittern) and loons. And many others.

True, many of these birds and animals are still to be seen occasionally, but far fewer than once they were. This past summer has cut into the number of water birds hatched, the experts say, and that is easy to understand, when it was so very dry. So many other things affect our wildlife adversely. Vehicles on the roads take a toll, spraying of fields and roadsides poisons their food and destroys their habitats. Hunting seasons eliminate vast numbers of the largest and healthiest of the bigger animals. Trapping still goes on, to say nothing of the fishing. Somehow, no one ever feels sorry for the fish, and says why kill them needlessly. We just put 'inches' barriers on their lives, and throw them back in the waters to die if they don't measure up.

Watching a TV program the other day, which showed how the big game of our land is being slaughtered for such things as their antlers, livers, gall bladders, etc., with the remainder of their carcass left to rot—I was struck again by the insanity of mankind.

I am not a vegetarian, or one who cannot see that all living creatures in some way feed some other living creatures (even man), but I do hate to see life wasted. As much as has been—and still is—by (especially mankind's thoughtlessness) a lack of consideration for the future.

In my own yard and woods, I see quite a few wild creatures daily. Birds were especially plentiful this spring, with Baltimore orioles, cedar waxwings, American goldfinches, nesting near, along with the more regularly seen chickadees, wrens, swallows, robins, bluejays, crows, magpies, woodpeckers, warblers and flycatchers. One day I saw a wood duck fly frantically through my yard, strong and silent, and very swift. (They should enter the Olympics!) About 10 minutes later I saw it again, and then again. This was my only sighting of a wood duck all summer, and I must assume she was hunting for something, perhaps her young got out of the nest and she couldn't spot them. Or she was looking for a marauder, with vengeance in mind.

Large predator birds I've seen are the hawks, especially the red-tailed hawk, who lives over west of my land, but makes the whole area his 'dinner table'. There is also a family of pigeon hawks, often seen sitting on the power lines overhead, looking a bit like a tame pigeon. They will take their toll in mice, grasshoppers, and other small livestock.

My farm is also host to a family (I believe) of great horned owls, for I see one around quite often—and on one occasion, boasted a pair of them on my deck railing for a half hour or so. These were probably young ones, not yet as wary as they will become, but very large already, as they are hatched early in the spring. Utterly silent all summer, I've seen (I thought, only one) ghosting over my garden, down the driveway, through the trees, then on this one morning, they posed for me, not seeing me and my camera inside my glass barrier.

At least one deer has walked in my garden, a smallish skunk has passed through, a fat brown rabbit and a half-size replica have spent some time in my garden, where I've seen nipped off pea-pods, which I am pleased to share with them. A ruffed grouse female, one of the few reddish-colored ones I've seen (usually they are grey) has inhabited my space, picking seeds and berries in the garden or along the driveway. I hope she stays for the winter—there will be plenty of rose-apples for her, as there were countless wild roses this year, and the bushes are hanging with the red berries.

Saskatoons, as they dry up into wild 'raisins' have given food to many little birds. I often see the chickadees working away up on the tops of the bushes. Evening grosbeaks and waxwings, the berry-eaters, should have great pickings this winter, from the maples, lilacs and mountain ash, all loaded with seeds. What did these creatures eat before we brought in these exotic species? Ah, there were many more wild berries then.

When you see that deer, think of its beauty, and stamina that lets it live in our no-longer-hospitable environment. Don't think of bullets plopping into its tawny hide. The same with the bear, he is as frightened of you as you are of him. Get out of his way, and probably he will soon get out of yours. Coyotes do good by keeping down the mice numbers, and I'm sure mice must be good for something, too. I don't even step on ants or spiders intentionally, and would certainly never bash a snake merely because it is a snake.

Our wildlife needs our respect and some care. Why not give it?

WHAT'S NEWS at the Library

By Michelle Whitlock

The Library has had an extremely successful summer this year in everything it has done—from the Summer Reading Program to developing other new programs for the fall. Now that summer is pretty well over, though, the children will be heading back to school and to more books. Because I'm sure that the children who do their homework and the parents who help them will be seeing enough of difficult subjects in months to come, the Library is here to offer books that all ages can enjoy.

Throughout the last two weeks, the Library has purchased many books for the upcoming influx of students and parents who are once again at home after finishing vacations and other summer fun. In the adult section, we have added Til We Meet Again by Judith Krantz, The Money-lenders of Shahpur by Helen Forester, Forging the Darksword by Margaret Weis, The Cardinal of the Kremlin by Tom Clancy, The Roads of Heaven by Melissa Scott, King of the Murgos by David Eddings, Upon a Moon-Dark

Moor by Rebecca Brandewyne, Green Magic by Jack Vance, and Til
The Real Thing Comes Along by Iris
Rainer Dart.

Among the books for those teenagers who love romance are their very favorite. Last week four new books by Francine Pascal were purchased: Tug of War, Stretching the Truth, Troublemaker, and Caught in the Middle. For the adventuresome, we have Treasure Island by Robert Louis Stevenson. As our motto says—

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE!!!

Last, but not least, even if the children don't go to school, we have some special books for them too! This week our newest additions are A Promise is a Promise by Robert Munsch, and Clown-Arounds Go on Vacation by Joanna Cole. And, just a reminder to the parents who bring their children to storytime, now that the Summer Reading Program is over we return to our usual time of 10:30 a.m. every Friday morning.

As this is the last time I will write this column, I would like to say goodbye to all who read it.

Summer has flown at the library

By Kris Ann Maas

Summer sure does fly by when you enjoy your work. It's hard to believe, but September is just around the corner. The thought of going back to studying until midnight and eating Kraft Dinner does nothing to excite me, but I am looking forward to going into my LAST year of university. Hopefully, the wonderful experience of working with the children in the Summer Reading Programs will aid my future endeavors as an elementary teacher.

The Summer Reading Programs ended with a bang. Both the elementary and preschool programs were a success. The library had 39 elementary program children, and the preschool program had 38 children participating. A lot of fun and games ended off the summer and unfortunately, the Summer Reading Program. Congratulations to all the prize winners and a special thank you to all the children who have participated. The 'Lean, Keen, Reading Machines' are welcome to continue to come to the library during the winter months, as well as all the students who were unable to come to the program. We have a lot of great books in the library, and the students should take advantage of the opportunity to read them.

The children who were in the Summer Reading Programs did a lot of crafts and art. As a result of this, the library has a great variety of artwork that belongs to the children. If you have participated in the programs, please come down to the library and pick up the good stuff you left behind. Also all participants received a 'Lean, Keen, Reading Machine' certificate. If you were not here for the parties, you may wish to pick up your certificates at the library.

The Monoporead board game is now officially over. We would like to thank the 47 participants for their enthusiasm for the game. The game was played over 470 times! Hopefully the participants read a lot of great books and enjoyed their prizes. Don't forget that next summer you can join Monoporead fun again.

Last Thursday was the last matinee show of the summer. Over all, the movies were received well, but some of them were a little too long. The library was unable to show all the movies they had wished to, but suitable alternatives were chosen. Over all, 297 kids attended the movies, averaging 33 kids per show! Thanks again, to Rhondaray for supplying the movies.

Well, I guess this is it. My final goodbye to the library. It has been great working at the library and a wonderful experience. Everyone was very helpful and encouraging. I wish all the board members and library staff well, and thank you to them for making my summer great (that includes you, too, Michelle!). See you soon!

COLLECTORS ON TOUR—Nearly 30 members of an Edmonton Bottle Collectors Club visited Steve Andrishak's Fort George Museum last Sunday, and declared themselves most impressed with his fine displays of an-

Horse club show rescheduled

By Myrna Golden

Well, the nasty weather struck again. Due to the excess of moisture our Family Fun Horse Show that was to be held on August 21 was postponed. We hope that we will get a little luckier on our next attempt, which will be on Monday, September 5.

We are really emphasizing FAMILY FUN and hope to see all ages out to have an enjoyable day—both participants and watchers.

Some of the show events are halter classes (junior and senior), a stallion class, and a mare and foal class. There are also Western Pleasure and Equitation classes, and a Trail Class. To those of you over 40, you will be interested in the 2 events we have especially for you: Western Pleasure and Western Equitation.

Of course, not to leave the little guys out, we have 3 events for 9 and under: a Halter Class, Western Pleasure (walk and trot) and Western Equitation (walk and trot).

After the show events, we are having a Gymkhana which includes such events as Barrel Racing, Stake Race, Flag Picking, Pole Bending, Rescue Race, Musical Tires, Key Hole and Night Herder.

These should be exciting and some will be a lot of fun to watch, especially the Night Herder and Rescue Race.

We are charging fees of $5 per person for 5 or more events, or $1 per event, and our prizes are medallions for first place, and rosettes from first to fifth place.

Let's hope the weather cooperates this next time around and we see lots of you out there to enjoy our Horse Show!

Elk Point REAL approves pole replacement

Elk Point REAL executive have approved a program to replace 150 poles on their system. Earlier this year a patrol was completed by Ed Smith, President of the REAL, Gunther May, Director, and Fred Kerschbaumer, Supervisor, Alberta Power Ltd.

The Elk Point REAL executive chose to have Alberta Power Ltd. administer this proposal. Four contractors were notified to submit tenders to complete the pole replacements by October 1, 1988. The contract was awarded to A & B Line Construction, Vermilion, who were the low bid. Construction was started on August 19, 1988. Customers within the REAL will experience power outages over the next 30 days, while A & B Line Construction are replacing poles. Power outages will be limited to two hours per outage, unless arrangements have been made with individual members and the contractor. For further information, Elk Point REAL customers are asked to call Alberta Power Ltd. at 645-3603 in St. Paul.

Yields forecast favorable

The 1988 drought will have significant impact on crop yields in some regions of Alberta this fall, but crop reporters with Alberta Agriculture say much of the province is expecting average to above average production.

With harvest of fall seeded crops nearly complete and combining of spring seeded crops about to begin, predictions for yields range from below normal in dryland areas of southern Alberta, to average in central Alberta and above average in northern Alberta.

Janet Nasse and Lynn Johnston, statisticians with the department in Edmonton, say as of mid-August there is a wide range of conditions both within and among the regions.

Johnston says once farmers begin combining spring-seeded crops over the next couple weeks a more accurate forecast of per-acre yield averages can be made. She says rain in early August improved drought-stressed crops in southern Alberta and helped fill seed heads in crops in northern Alberta.

Nasse says drought conditions have sped up crop maturity in the dryland areas of southern Alberta producing yields in spring wheat ranging from five to 40 bushels per acre. Yields in irrigated areas have ranged from average to above average.

Weather conditions have also produced some disease and insect problems in canola crops.

The statisticians report the first cut of hay, in most regions, is generally rated to be both fair in quantity and quality. A second cut is underway where regrowth is adequate.

Although pasture conditions vary, cattle are reported to be in good condition across the province as farmers have provided feed supplementation this summer in the driest areas.

Looking at the province from north to south, the Peace River Region and parts of the northwest agricultural region, headquartered in Barrhead, expect to have average to above average crop yields.

Above average rainfall between April and August contributed to the good yield prospects, although in some cases too much rain has been a problem.

Cool, wet conditions have delayed maturation of cereal crops and also delayed harvest of the first cut of hay. In many areas, hay is expected to be of poor quality either because it was rained on in the windrow or because it became too mature before it was cut. There is also a risk of early frost damaging some of the late-seeded crops before they mature.

The western half of the northeast agricultural region, headquartered in Vermilion, is expected to have average to above normal yields, while the east and southeastern districts are expected to have below average yields.

Timely rainfall in the region has helped to fill out crops and allow for the regrowth of hay.

Crops in the north central region, headquartered in Red Deer, show greater drought effects, particularly in the eastern farming areas. Although rainfall will help fill out crops, yields are generally expected to be below average.

Crop production in the western part of the region (west of Highway 2), which received timely rainfall, is expected to be normal.

Both the south central region headquartered in Airdrie and the southern region, headquartered in Lethbridge, continue to show the worst effects of the continued dry weather.

In the dryland farming areas in both regions crops suffered from drought as well as heat stress, which affected yield and rate of maturity.

Rain came too late in the Airdrie region to help early seeded crops, but it should benefit late seeded crops as well as pasture and second hay crops. Most cereals have headed out and are generally in fair condition, but poor crops are reported in some districts. Yields on spring wheat are expected to range from five bushels per acre at Oyen to 40 bushels per acre in the Rumsey/Mundare area near Drumheller.

In the southern region spring seeded cereal crops are almost heading out and are generally in fair condition. Poor crops are reported at Claresholm and Vulcan, however.

Yield expectations on dryland farms range from 10 to 20 bushels per acre for spring wheat; 10 to 25 bushels per acre for oats; 15 to 25 bushels per acre for barley and 10 to 20 bushels per acre for canola.

In the irrigated areas yields are expected to range from 50 to 65 bushels per acre for wheat; 70 to 80 bushels per acre for oats; 70 to 90 bushels per acre for barley and 35 to 50 bushels for canola.

4-H looking good for fall

Northeast Regional 4-H Ambassador Annette Kotowich of St. Paul and Regional 4-H Summer Assistant Charlene Schultz, Vermilion, visited the Review last week as part of the Provincial Media Blitz.

With area 4-H clubs starting their 1988-89 season soon, the blitz is designed to recruit new members and to promote what the clubs have to offer Alberta's young people.

Miss Kotowich, who has been a member of the St. Paul MultiClub ever since she reached the minimum age of ten years, taking part in both Steer and Heifer classes, says 'we want people to go into 4-H, and see if it IS for them.' She outlined the various opportunities for projects, programs and activities available through 4-H, noting that she had personally attended Club Week, Selections and the Provincial Heifer Show, and is eagerly awaiting a trip to Toronto in November which she won at Selections.

Meeting new friends, learning new skills, taking part in camps, tours and exchanges, as well as having fun with social activities at club and district level are all a part of this challenging and exciting educational program for young people. Through 4-H, such skills as public speaking and maximizing personal potential and self-esteem are learned, which will help the members to become productive and contributed members of society.

Elk Point and Heinsburg Multi Clubs will soon be getting underway for the new season, while Elk Point Saddle Slickers are working toward their Achievement Day in September. Watch the Review for further details in coming weeks.

The 1988 theme is '4-H Looks Good On You'. Why not give it a try this year?

7.6 million payout under slaughter cattle program

Slaughter cattle producers in Alberta, enrolled in the national price stabilization plan, will receive about $7.6 million in stabilization payments in early September, following an announcement of a second quarter payout by the national beef committee.

The committee has announced a $42.45 per head payout under the National Tripartite Beef Stabilization Plan - the third consecutive quarterly payout under the plan.

The stabilization payments will be made on about 180,000 head of slaughter cattle marketed in Alberta during the second quarter of the year. There are 2,644 Alberta producers enrolled in the slaughter program.

The national tripartite plan is designed to protect participating producers from sudden changes in market prices or input costs.

An insurance-type program, the national tripartite price stabilization program makes a payout to participating producers if the national average price for the particular commodity falls below the support price.

Herb Lock, administrator of red meat stabilization plans in Alberta, says the price of feeder cattle and the price of feed are the two major factors that influence the support price levels.

These factors changed dramatically during the second quarter, but both factors have not yet had full effect on the support price formula.

"Increased slaughter cattle marketing in Western Canada, in the second quarter and particularly in June, contributed to a decrease in quarterly averaged prices," he says. "During the quarter there was an eight per cent decline in the price of feeder cattle, however this was offset by a 14 per cent increase in feed costs."

Because there is a three-month lag in including changes in barley prices in the support price formula, the full impact of feed price increases won't be shown in the support price until later in the year.

"Although feed prices increased in recent months these are not fully reflected in the second quarter figures," he says. "And the recently announced initial prices for barley also have potential to increase the support price level for upcoming quarters."

Lock says producers reporting by the usual quarterly deadline should expect payment from the program by early September.

Anyone wanting more information on the slaughter cattle stabilization program can call toll-free Alberta Agriculture's Centralized Program Support office in Edmonton at 1-800-232-9479.

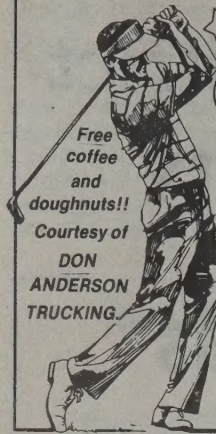

Referring to another stabilization program, Lock says for the fourth consecutive quarter no payment is being made under the feeder cattle plan, although rising production costs have potential to change the situation later this year.

He says through the second quarter of 1988 average Canadian feeder prices have been higher than the nationally calculated cash cost of production.

There are 1,460 Alberta producers enrolled in the feeder price stabilization program.

Premiums paid by farmers under both programs will remain unchanged through 1988. Slaughter cattle premiums will remain at $7.40 per head, while feeder cattle premiums will be $4.85 per head.

Beef markets expected to improve through '88

Beef cattle markets should improve and remain fairly strong through the second half of 1988, although the same can't be said for hog and lamb prices, according to an Alberta Agriculture specialist.

Ron Gietz, a livestock analyst with the market analysis branch in Edmonton, says although beef prices won't be as high as they were last fall, the short-term picture for cattle prices is good.

By contrast, hog and lamb producers who saw record prices last year, have watched as increasing production has forced prices down. Gietz says there may be some marginal improvement in these markets in late 1988 or early 1989.

"The drought in Western Canada and parts of the United States really hasn't had the impact on the beef industry that some expected," he says. "The drought will be affecting the timing of marketing but it hasn't changed the supply situation."

"Slaughter cattle markets should see gradual improvement into early fall and substantial improvement by late fall. However for hogs it looks like further price declines through to the end of the year with some gradual improvement late in the year."

Gietz made his comments in the second quarter livestock situation and outlook which has just been released.

Looking at slaughter cattle prices, Gietz says Alberta prices dropped during the second quarter because of a large number of cattle coming to market from mid-April onwards.

However, as the run of cattle declines he expects prices for Alberta fed steers to improve to the $78 to $80 per hundredweight (cwt) range by early fall and rise to between $80 and $84 per cwt by late fall. As supplies tighten, further price improvement is expected in the first quarter of 1989.

In spite of a dramatic increase in the cost of barley, Gietz says it hasn't had significant impact on feeder cattle prices. He says there is a "favorable" outlook for feeder cattle prices through to mid-1989.

He says 500 to 600 pound calves should be in the $115 to $120 per cwt range this fall, compared to $120 to $130 per cwt range a year ago. Heavier calves, at about 800 pounds, should be in the $90 to $95 per cwt range this year compared to the $100 or more per cwt last fall.

Looking at hog markets he says 9 and 11 per cent production increases in Canada and the United States, respectively, in the second quarter have contributed to a large supply of meat and lower prices.

The specialist says Alberta is now producing more hogs than can be slaughtered in a single shift at processing plants, which means more live hogs are being exported to the U.S. markets.

Hog output in Canada and the U.S. is expected to remain high for the remainder of 1988 and early in 1989.

Because of increased feed cost he says producers will see tighter margins and short-term negative margins during the second half of the year.

With second-quarter hog prices averaging about $64 per cwt, Gietz predicted third-quarter prices to slide about $56 to $61 per cwt and fourth quarter prices to drop to $50 to $55 per cwt. Some gradual price improvement is expected by the second quarter of 1989.

Alberta sheep producers have seen two records set in the last year, record high prices in 1987 and record price drop in the second quarter of 1988.

Gietz says several factors have contributed to an increased supply of lamb which has forced the Alberta price to drop about 30 per cent over the last five weeks.

Supplies are expected to keep prices down through to the end of the year. Gietz says prices now in the $63 to $66 per cwt range may drop to about $60 by October and improve to about $70 per cwt by late fall or early winter.
